INTRODUCTION

A few notes on the criteria underlying this check-list might be helpful.

Recordings were selected for inclusion on the basis that they feature Beat (or Beat-connected) writers, performing their own or others' works, in interview, or as the subject of documentary audio or video. Readings - and songs and other tributes to these artists - by artists who would not themselves warrant inclusion have been ignored. Thus Charles Laughton's reading from The Dharma Bums, for example, has been passed over here. BBC Sound Archive material has been included only where also held in the British Library Sound Archive.

That said, this discography aims to be comprehensive rather than purist. Charles Bukowski, for example, is by no stretch of the imagination one of the Beats, nor would he likely have appreciated being grouped with them. However, he was published by City Lights, wrote about Neal Cassady, and, most significantly perhaps, was for most of his life an underground writer who undoubtedly appealed to readers of Kerouac, Burroughs et al.

In general, selection is based on the accompanying bibliography by James D. Egles (see: <http://britishlibrary.typepad.co.uk/files/bl-beats-bibliography-printed-collections.pdf>) and includes any audio or video material featuring the artists listed therein, with the notable exception of Bob Dylan - whose audio output could be considered to fall outside the scope of a primarily literary checklist. The Library does however hold some rare Dylan recordings - please see the Sound Archive online catalogue or contact the British Library's Curator of Pop Music for further details.

Sub-sections are grouped alphabetically by artist name, and therein alphabetically by product (e.g. LP, CD, film, radio programme etc.) title. Dates of issue of commercial items are included in the title line if known.

Items featuring multiple contributors are generally listed under 'Beats in General' or - where the focus of the collection is less precise - 'Anthologies', the exceptions being those works weighted towards a single artist or only of interest in this context because of one among many contributors. It was felt the Giorno Poetry Systems series of spoken word (and music) anthologies deserved their own section. These are listed chronologically by catalogue number.

Electronic searching of this document by artist name is recommended: references to, e.g., Brion Gysin occur in entries other than those listed under the dedicated 'Brion Gysin' section; and there are many contributions by, e.g., Anne Waldman to recordings featuring more than one contributor.

Note that VHS cassettes are audio documents unless specifically listed as videotapes.

SA = British Library Sound Archive call number.

Finally, and most importantly, all this material is available to view or listen to, free of charge, at the British Library building in London. You just need to make an appointment.

William Burroughs tapes

24 tape reels, 8 tape cassettes

SA: C1156

Com: A collection of experimental tape recordings made in New York (1964-65) and London (1966-72). The collection comprises 24 reels of 1/4" magnetic tape, each of varying length: one 10" metal spool containing a mono dub of 'Puerto de los Santos' (the original tape is apparently no longer extant); nine 3" reels, some with Burroughs's handwritten labels or in boxes with his annotations (most of the boxes have Ian Sommerville's catalogue number, as well as later notes by Burroughs's bibliographer and archivist Barry Miles); twelve 7" reels, several of which have been re-spooled with new leader tape; one 5.75" reel; and one 5" reel with Burroughs's original handwritten label (the box has Brion Gysin's writing crossed out, and additional writing by Sommerville). Six of the cassettes are dubbings of material on the open reel tapes. The collection includes two original audio-cassettes (one with Burroughs's handwriting), the first featuring a recording of Burroughs at home in London with Johnny Brady (including Burroughs 'auditing' Brady), and Burroughs discussing drugs with a person unknown; the second features a visit from Francis de Costello, Keith Modigliani's interview with Burroughs for Gay Sunshine, some cut-ups, and a brief talk with filmmaker Antony Balch. Most of the material consists of tape-recorder experiments, comprising off-air recordings of radio broadcasts and TV shows, fragments of a BBC Shakespeare play, radio static, and readings from newspaper bulletins and his own texts (including discussions about the cut-up technique itself), all interspersed. With a total duration of approximately 12 hours, the collection provides a valuable insight into Burroughs's methodology, and constitutes an important document of his expansion from cut-ups on paper to vocal and sonic experimentation. Some of this material is curated on the 3-CD set Real English Tea Made Here (Audio Research Editions ARECD301, 2007).

William S. Burroughs

SA: 1CA0024032
